Confession of Faith in a Mennonite Perspective

Unison Reading A

We believe in God the Creator of all,
who has called forth a people of faith.
We believe in Jesus Christ, the Word become flesh, crucified and resurrected for us.
He is our Savior from evil and sin,
our peace and the exalted Lord of the church.
And we believe in the Holy Spirit,
the source of redemption and life.

We who respond to Christ in faith are his church, the community called to proclaim and to be a sign of the kingdom of God,
the new people sustained by Scripture and Spirit.
Thus we continue the mission of Christ, making disciples, forgiving, restoring,
baptizing believers, sharing the Lord's Supper, using our gifts in unity and love.

We commit ourselves to follow Jesus Christ, in his path through suffering to life.
By grace we are being changed into the image of God,
in which God created women and men.
As faithful disciples, we hear Christ's call to life in the Spirit in relation with God, to chastity, stewardship, love for the enemy,
to the practice of justice and peace.

We joyfully worship the three-in-one God,
as a holy nation, the people of God,
giving allegiance to Christ as our Lord,
living now as if in the age to come.
We place our hope in God's everlasting reign,
in victory over evil, the resurrection of the dead,
in Christ's coming again in judgment and glory.
To God be all glory! Amen!

Notes about the confession of faith: Unison Reading A is a summary of the Confession of Faith in a Mennonite Perspective in poetic style. It was written with a fairly regular meter in order to make it suitable to be set to music and sung.

- The Confession of Faith in a Mennonite Perspective was adopted by the General Conference Mennonite Church and the Mennonite Church in delegate sessions held in Wichita, Kansas, in July 1995.
- The full text of the Confession of Faith in a Mennonite Perspective was published by Herald Press, Scottdale, PA 15683 (1995), $4.95 ($7.10 in Canada) per copy. For congregational orders churches may call Mennonite Publishing House at 1 800 245-7894; individuals may call Provident Bookstores at 1 800 759-4447. E-mail address is mph%mph@mcimail.com
- The confession of faith will be available in several other languages. Contact Mennonite Publishing House/Herald Press for further information.

Foreword

Herald Press is pleased to present to you the 1997-1998 Mennonite Yearbook. This volume reports the current leadership, organizational entities, and the statistical record of the life of the Mennonite Church (MC) in Canada and the United States. Local, conference, churchwide, and worldwide dimensions are included. The Mennonite Yearbook also reflects the many ways the Mennonite Church interacts with, and relates to, the broader family of Mennonite church bodies.

Changes in this volume in light of integration

In this volume readers will note that, as usual, there are several changes. The impact of the planned integration of the Mennonite Church and the General Conference Mennonite Church has influenced several of these. Plans are underway to create an integrated yearbook directory. The publisher and staff of the Mennonite Yearbook are working with their counterparts who publish the Handbook of Information (Newton, Kansas) and the CMC Handbook (Winnipeg, Manitoba) to produce an integrated leadership resource.

The hope is to prepare a useful volume which will carry essential information about the various entities of the church, from local through worldwide. Mennonite Yearbook readers will find that some of the listings will not be as detailed as they are in this volume. In anticipation of the integrated publication, a few of the projected changes are reflected in this current volume. Readers will notice the following:

1. In the Directory of North American Congregations, the detail about each congregation is now limited to name, ID number, and affiliation(s).
2. In the General Information and Statistics tables in the Directory of Conferences and Congregations, fewer numbers are carried. Only the membership totals, total congregations, and the current ministerial categories are included. The detail of members and congregations by country, affiliation, and participants is carried in several tables of the Directory of Mennonite Church Statistics.
3. In the Directory of Urban and Area Organizations and Congregations readers will note that three entries—Mennonite Church Plantings, (2,242 full members in 25 congregations) Dual and Multi-Affiliated and Other Congregations, (2,743 full members in 117 congregations), and the Dual-Affiliated MC and GC Congregations (5,447 full members in 78 congregations) are no longer carried. All area and ethnic bodies have been retained.
4. In the Mennonite Ministerial Directory, the name of the congregation will be added for those ministers who carry active responsibility (Function 2) in congregational life.
5. To reflect the growing national identities within the church, readers will notice that the listings in the Directory of Mennonite and Inter-Mennonite Projects are organized by Canada, Other Countries and United States
6. The special days on the General Conference Mennonite Church calendar have been added to the detail of Special Days for 1997, 1998.

Other changes

In addition to the preceding, readers will find other changes. They are as follows:

1. The New England Fellowship of Mennonite Churches has dissolved. The Caribbean Evangelical Mennonite Mission (Puerto Rico) has been added.
2. E-mail, fax, and worldwide web information has been added by those organizations that participate in these levels of communication technologies. We were not able to add the same information provided to us by congregations and ministers. These will likely be added to the ministerial and congregational records in the future.
3. The directory title, Directory of Other Mennonite Church Conferences, has been changed to read Directory of Other Mennonite Fellowships and Conferences in recognition of several of these groups who see themselves as fellowship rather than as conference entities.

Features

In the "Mennonite Church, 1997" article, George B. Stoltzfus, general secretary of the Mennonite Church General Board, reflects on the insights from Anabaptist-Mennonite history which bear on unity in the life of the church. Our history seems to encourage strong independent, leadership, hence a tendency to divide. Stoltzfus calls the church to embrace and respect that past, and at the same time to support the common core of beliefs which have resided within the Anabaptist-Mennonite movement from its inception in the 1500s.

In "All Passed Off Harmoniously" Sam Steiner, archivist and director of the Institute of Mennonite Studies at Conrad Grebel College in Waterloo, Ontario, traces the past century (1897-1997) in the life of the Mennonite Church. In 1897 formal moves were made to organize and unify the witness of the Mennonite Church. The new organization, Mennonite General Conference, served the church until it was succeeded by the Mennonite Church General Assembly in 1971. This organizational framework will be succeeded with the integration with the General Conference Mennonite Church within the next few years. Steiner

Mennonite Church 1997

by George B. Stoltzfus
General Secretary, Mennonite Church General Board

Prone to division?

Are Anabaptists genetically prone to divisions or is that a trait that grew out of their particular historical context? We have a documented tendency to form new groups. This tendency has occurred from the very beginning of the Anabaptist movement. This question is discussed at some length in the book Anabaptists and the Sword by James M. Stayer (Lawrence, Kans., Coronado Press, 1976). This title was reviewed in the July 1982 issue of the Mennonite Quarterly Review (MQR). The author and the reviewer Charles Nienkirchen in "Reviewing the Case for a Nonsepartist Ecclesiology in Early Swiss Anabaptism" engaged in a public dialogue in order to sort out this tendency in the history of Anabaptism in general and of Mennonites in particular.

There is a part of me which denies the importance of such academic questions. After all, which came first, the chicken or the egg? Yet the answer to this question is important to me as a member one Mennonite body that is presently invigorated by discussions of integration and many other potentially divisive issues. It has significant impact on hope.

Can we, by looking at the historical forces present in the 16th century, understand why some of the schisms occurred? Can we, in that understanding, begin to develop a new image about what it means to be Anabaptist? If we were able to develop a theology which gives permission to be the loyal opposition minority in the local church (Stayer argues that this was the mindset of the early Anabaptists), would we be able to learn to differ with others without separating ourselves from them? Stayer suggests that the early Anabaptists left the state church only after they were convinced that they were not accepted and were, in fact, marked for extinction.

Two Questions

Recently I sat in a meeting of the moderators and secretaries of seven of the denominational groups that recognize common Anabaptist roots and identity. In those meetings I reflected often on a set of questions. The first question was: "why was it necessary for us to meet as representatives of seven different denominations?" We have very strong connections in our roots and in our present mission in the world. It seems to me that we would have a much greater impact on the world as a unified group than as small denominational entities. The second competing question which continued to be part of my internal dialogue was: "How can denominations that are so different from each other be content to be at the same table?" We differ in how we worship. Our evangelical, national, and mission expressions range over a wide continuum. In some ways it was an extreme view of the ways we as the Mennonite Church (MC) differ from our sisters and brothers in the General Conference Mennonite Church (GCMC).

> The center of the Anabaptist-Mennonite vision revolves around the three-fold axis of Christology, ecclesiology and eschatology. In this vision Christ is the foundation, the church is the center, and hope is in the consummation of all things.

Integration is not first in the mind of the typical member of the Mennonite Church. But it is very much on the agenda of the staff and members of your General Board. We are often asked to explain the reasons that the MC and GCMC denominations are drawn together. My second question at the meeting of the moderators and secretaries is an echo of this question. In another article "One Lord, One Church, One Hope," published in July 1983 MQR Howard Loewen does a great service by reviewing many of the confessions of faith of the Mennonite Church, General Conference Mennonite Church, and Mennonite Brethren denominations. I commend this article to the reader.

Our shared vision

Howard notes that confessional statements do have authority in the Anabaptist tradition. He further believes that we must take seriously [the] confessional tradition for it provides one significant angle of vision on the historical unfolding of Mennonite life and thought. Such a perspective counters a narrow sectarianism and rigid denominationalism. More important, it lends great strength to the theological vision of Anabaptism by taking more seriously the tradition as a whole which gave it birth. Loewen's view of the theological vision which unifies the confessions of these three Anabaptist denominations is as follows: The center of the Anabaptist-Mennonite vision revolves around the three-fold axis of 1. Christology, 2. ecclesiology, and 3. Eschatology. In this vision Christ is the foundation, the church is the center, and hope is in the consummation of all things. These provide a theology of redemption, a theology of church, and a theology of hope.

Can we still agree that Christ, the healer of our every ill, remains the foundation of our faith? Can we agree that his bride, the church, remains our place of nurture in the faith and the place of our accountability? Can we agree that the hope beyond history given by Jesus is the vision that empowers and impels us in the service of his kingdom? I believe we can and will. In so doing we will be responding to God's call to be followers of Jesus Christ. In so doing we will be empowered by the Holy Spirit to grow as communities of grace, joy, and peace. In so doing we will become conduits of the healing and hope so desperately needed in our troubled world. As we seek to individually and corporately make personal the joint vision statement Vision: Healing and Hope, (see bottom of this page) of the Mennonite Church and General Conference Mennonite Church denominations it will be my prayer that we do so in the rich context of the shared beliefs reflected in our historical confessions of faith. ■

HEALING
& HOPE

Vision

God calls us to be followers of Jesus Christ and, by the power of the Holy Spirit,
to grow as communities
of grace, joy, and peace,
so that God's healing and hope flow through us to the world.

Priorities

To follow Jesus Christ more faithfully we are called to:

- enrich our prayer, worship, and study of the scriptures.
- offer all that we are and have to God.

To grow as communities of grace, joy, and peace we want to:

- call and nurture congregational leaders for ministry in a changing environment.
- practice love, forgiveness, and hospitality that affirm our diversity and heal our brokenness.

To live as people of healing and hope we are committed to:

- invite others to faith in Jesus Christ.
- seek God's peace in our homes, work, neighbourhoods, and the world.

summarized the major issues with which the church dealt in the past century. He believes that "the goals of unity and effective provision of services to congregations and outreach to the world will remain the objectives of the integrated MC-GC "General Conference" in the 21st century."

A look at the numbers

At the end of 1996, conferences related to Mennonite Church General Assembly included 99,131 members (8,172 in Canada, 90,293 in the United States, and 666 in other countries) in 1,122 congregations (117 in Canada, 989 in the United States, and 16 in other countries).

In addition, there are 12,569 members who are part of other Mennonite bodies and 611 who are members of other Christian bodies that relate to MC congregations. Using the full membership of 112,311 as a base, the average size of Mennonite congregations stands at 100 members; the median size is 60 members.

The 19 fellowships and conferences who have had some tie with the Mennonite family but have chosen not to participate in the program of Mennonite Church General Assembly number 20,814 members (2,422 in Canada, 17,751 in the United States; and 641in other countries) in 405 congregations (54 in Canada, 316 in the United States, and 35 in other countries).

In 1995 giving to the church averaged $927.79 per member.

Size of congregations, including church plantings, range from 59 with no members to 10 that are 600 and above. Congregations are located in all sizes of communities; however, more than half (568) are found in communities whose population is 49,999 and less.

Integrated related numbers

Currently there are three integrated conferences—Mennonite Conference of Eastern Canada (MCEC), Pacific Northwest Mennonite Conference (PNMC), and Pacific Southwest Mennonite Conference (PSMC).

There are 177 congregations in these conferences; full membership is 19,798. An additional 78 individual congregations in 13 other district conferences are dually affiliated with the General Conference Mennonite Church; these congregations include 5,447 members. Thus 255 congregations (23 percent) of Mennonite Church congregations are already dually affiliated with the General Conference Mennonite Church. These congregations represent 25,245 (22 percent) of the full membership of the Mennonite Church. Conferences with the greatest number of dually affiliated congregations are South Central with 18; Illinois with 14; and Indiana-Michigan with 12. Only eight of 22 Mennonite Church conferences do not have a dually affiliated congregation within their membership.

Growth areas

Where did growth occur in the life of the church in 1996? Those with the greatest numerical membership growth are as follows:

Participating conferences — Virginia (380) Lancaster (217), and Northwest (141).

Urban and area organizations—African-American Mennonite Association (284), Hispanic Mennonite Convention (135) and Philadelphia Inter-Mennonite Task Force (107). The Los Angeles Center for Anabaptist Leadership of Southern California added memberships of other Mennonite and Christian bodies. This expanded their size to 5,136 in 68 congregations.

Non-participating conferences — Unaffiliated Mennonite Congregations (483), Fellowship Churches (135), and Mid-West Mennonite Fellowship (106).

Other Mennonite bodies — Beachy Amish (232), Conservative Mennonite Conference (150), and Eastern Pennsylvania (124).

The groups that gained the most congregations were Lancaster (11), Church Plantings (7), Los Angles (7), and Illinois (6). All other groups had a net gain or loss of less than five congregations.

Creating this volume

This 85th volume of the Mennonite Yearbook involved much effort by many people. First, our thanks to congregational statisticians who provided detailed information about their churches. Their hours of labor made possible this important record for the broader church. Thanks also to the representatives of Mennonite conferences, churchwide boards, and agencies who supplied information about their programs. Finally, special thanks to June Lender, editorial assistant, who handled Yearbook details in addition to her duties in the composing room at MPH. Thanks also to Susan Leighty, Cindy Miller, and Carl Shawley, who assisted in entering congregational and organizational informational information this year. Finally, thanks to many other Mennonite Publishing House staff who, as usual, worked together under an intense schedule to make this volume available to you in a timely fashion.

The last volume

This is the 85th and last volume of the Mennonite Yearbook. As noted earlier the next leadership resource will be an integrated volume reflecting the anticipated integrated MC and GC church body. Since 1905 the Mennonite Yearbook has been a useful tool in the conduct of the affairs of

"All passed off harmoniously"

by Sam Steiner
Waterloo, Ontario

On November 12, 1897 John F. Funk wrote in his diary, "All passed off harmoniously—A call for General Conference issued" to begin in one year.[1] John Funk was publisher of the Herald of Truth, a leading bishop in the Indiana Conference, and a long time promoter of unity within the (Old) Mennonite Church. He believed the Mennonite Church (MC), then a loose grouping of sixteen district conferences in the United States and Canada, was ready for greater structural cohesion. Yet only eighteen months later he challenged the authority of the new Mennonite General Conference that formed in November 1898. Only half the district conferences immediately joined the General Conference, and the largest one—Lancaster—did not join until the denomination reorganized in 1971.

The issues that swirled around the founding of Mennonite General Conference found echos a century later in the integration discussions between the Mennonite Church and General Conference Mennonite Church. A review of the impact of this small organization (the ordained, all-male delegate body did not reach 100 until 1929, or 200 until 1959) can reassure the 20th century Mennonite Church (MC) as it anticipates new relationships in the 21st century.

Reasons for forming General Conference

As early as 1864 a resolution came to the Indiana Mennonite Conference stating, "Whereas slight differences exist among the Mennonite brotherhood in different parts of the United States and Canada, both in their views and practices it would be well to hold a general conference . . . that [ministers] might meet together and in the free exchange of views and opinions become more united."[2] Perhaps this resolution was stimulated by the Amish "General Conference" that began in 1862 in an effort to address sharp differences that emerged in the Amish community and resulted in the formation of Old Order Amish and Amish Mennonites.[3]

By the 1890s many voices called for a General Conference. John Funk argued that the Dordrecht Confession of Faith professed by the district conferences had itself been created in a 1632 "general conference" in the Netherlands.[4] D. H. Bender, a young Pennsylvania minister, asserted three reasons for a General Conference 1) To bring closer unity among the conferences, 2) to "consider, control and settle" any important difficulties that arose, as portrayed in the Acts 15 "general conference" and 3) to "establish, control and encourage" all areas of church and mission work.[5]

A young school teacher from Missouri provided one of the most articulate voices. Daniel Kauffman was ordained as a minister in 1892 and bishop in 1896. He argued that there were many questions that were not of the "thus saith the Lord" variety that should be settled by the whole church, not just parts of it. He called for a unified attitude towards missions, toward parachurch organizations like Christian Endeavor, and emerging church institutions like orphanages and church schools. He asked, "How can there be a position without a representative body to take it?"[6]

Nonetheless "General Conference" promoters moved cautiously, for significant opposition remained. Some feared a General Conference would centralize church work in Elkhart, Indiana where the Elkhart Institute, Herald of Truth, and Mennonite Evangelizing and Benevolent Board already functioned. A prominent Lancaster Conference bishop, J.N. Brubacher, voiced unhappiness that some of the younger ordained men who supported the movement had not gone through the lot. In his view this undermined the power and authority of their calling.[7] Still others feared a central body would hasten division within the church, not heal it.

In November, 1897 a "preliminary" General Conference session was held at the Pike meetinghouse at Elida, Ohio (leaders had been cautioned about meeting too close to Elkhart). Of seventy persons present, all but six favored an initial General Conference meeting to be held in 1898.[8]

Institutional Issues

Issues familiar to modern integration discussions filled the early years. The first item discussed was "What shall we call the new organization?" John Funk suggested the name "United Conference of Mennonites" to avoid confusion with the General Conference of the Mennonites of North America (present day GCs), but delegates retained the already familiar Mennonite General Conference. Secondly delegates reviewed the relationship of the new central body to the district conferences and congregations. Which had authority? Although delegates agreed not to "interfere with the decisions or regulations which the district conferences make," the General Conference was a "higher tribunal" for matters that could not be settled at the district level.

The issues that swirled around the founding of Mennonite General Conference found echoes a century later in the integration discussions between the Mennonite Church and the General Conference Mennonite Church.

The third question raised at the 1898 meeting was "what shall we do about publishing a new hymn book?" This discussion birthed the Church and Sunday School Hymnal that served the Mennonite Church for a generation. (Compiled by J. D. Brunk, this 1902 hymnal is still available from Herald Press, Scottdale, Pa.) The fourth question addressed the relationship of Mennonite General Conference to the agencies and institutions that were emerging within the church—the Mennonite Evangelizing and Benevolent Board, Mennonite Book and Tract Society, Elkhart Institute (later Goshen College), an Orphan's Home and an Old People's Home in Ohio. Delegates decided to investigate all organizations that wanted to be considered church institutions, and immediately recognized the Evangelizing Board and the Old People's Home.

These second and fourth issues triggered negative reactions among those hesitant about a central organization, as well as among some former supporters like John Funk. Funk noted that only half of the district conferences had endorsed Mennonite General Conference, and argued the new body had endorsed an Old People's Home that had not been approved by the district conferences.[9] John Funk had a personal agenda surrounding the Elkhart Institute and the implicit threat of a church-run publishing enterprise that would compete with his privately-owned Mennonite Publishing Company. Nonetheless, his concerns about "top-down" institutionalization and lukewarm grass-roots support for centralization echoed 100 years later in the MC-GC integration discussions. But fears about dividing the church did not materialize. Only one Russian Mennonite district conference (later known as Evangelical Mennonite Brethren) did not join, and that related to language issues.

Coordination of churchwide institutions became a major task for Mennonite General Conference, though it always maintained an arms-length relationship with the organizations it created. By 1910 the Mennonite Board of Missions and Charities, the Mennonite Board of Education and Mennonite Publishing House were in place. Mennonite Mutual Aid and the Mennonite Board of Congregational Ministries followed in 1944 and 1971 respectively.

Mennonite General Conference adopted its first constitution in 1931. The first unordained delegate (Orie O. Miller) was listed in 1935. The first women delegate was Eleanor High from Ontario in 1969, at the last full session of Mennonite General Conference. The small number of voting delegates did not reflect the large attendance that were attracted to General Conference sessions. By 1939 when over 4,000 persons registered, and many more attended the sessions in Allensville, Pa., a decision was made to increase the inspirational nature of the gatherings. This Mennonite "family-gathering" continued into General Assembly years, and played as great a role in Mennonite Church self-understanding as the myriad resolutions passed by delegates.

Defining the faith

Rapid institutional growth did not mean Mennonite General Conference delegates neglected spiritual and doctrinal matters. Recalling Daniel Kauffman's admonition to seek unity on important issues for which there wasn't a "thus saith the Lord," delegates in 1898 discussed how better to "contend against worldliness" and to bring the church "into a higher degree of spirituality and godliness."

By 1911 Mennonite General Conference appointed a committee to develop a "book of doctrines," not as a confession of faith, but to further explain the Dordrecht Confession, "together with other points of faith usually taught from pulpits and press." This resulted in Bible Doctrine, edited by Daniel Kauffman in 1914. Mennonite General Conference also authorized Doctrines of the Bible, also edited by Kauffman, at its 1925 sessions. These volumes introduced an unfamiliar systematic theology approach to the Mennonite Church, but this reflected the theological discussion happening throughout North America.

Fundamentalism, a conservative, systematic approach to theology that often included carefully delineated views about the end times and the return of Christ, entered Mennonite General Conference discussion as early as 1913 when the assembly approved an "inerrancy" statement on biblical inspiration that reflected fundamentalist influences.

More explicitly, the 1921 Mennonite General Conference approved eighteen Christian Fundamentals that stood alongside the Dordrecht Confession of Faith. It approved a new confession of faith in 1963 as its successor did in 1995. Thus in each generation Mennonite General Conference tried to comprehensively articulate the denomination's understanding of its faith and doctrine.

But difficult issues arise more than once a generation, so Mennonite General Conference often found itself responding to more narrowly focused concerns facing the church. From the 1920s to the 1940s this often included nonconformity, particularly in matters of dress. During both World Wars and subsequent national conflicts, Mennonite General Conference restated its peace position, and created a Peace Problems Committee beginning in 1919.

The pace of formal statements on specific issues increased in the 1950s and through the years of General Assembly. These ranged widely, including Nonresistance (1951), Race Relations (1955), Nurture and Evangelism of Children (1955), Nonconformity (1959), Amnesty (1975), Abortion (1975), Use of the Law (1981), Leadership and Authority in the Life of the Church (1981), Human Sexuality (1987) A Call to Peacemaking Task Force (1993), A Resolution on Male Violence Against Women (1993) Agreeing and Disagreeing in Love (1995), Vision: Healing and Hope (1995) and others.

Shifting Emphases

The centralized activity at the denominational level did shift authority from the congregation during the first five decades of Mennonite General Conference. The very delegate base of the conference, in which all bishops were delegates and virtually all remaining delegates were ordained, undergirded this authority.

A reacting shift in this balance between congregation, conference and denomination became evident in the 1950s and 1960s as ordained leaders with lifelong tenure were replaced by salaried clergy. With this came more openness on matters of dress, musical instruments and acceptance of divorced members. Discipline reverted to the congregation where authority resided increasingly with lay leaders.

A parallel shift came in the Mennonite Church reorganization of 1971. Authority moved increasingly to lay delegates. Local congregational program increased. The new Mennonite Board of Congregational Ministries supported this local activity. Efforts to streamline structure through five "Regions" that would replace district conferences failed, as the more grass-roots conferences found a life of their own in program and staffing.

These shifts found the Mennonite Church moving toward the General Conference Mennonite Church that was trying to increase accountability between congregations, conferences and denomination. Although fraternal greetings had been extended from the General Conference Mennonite Church to Mennonite General Conference as early as 1905, only in 1983 did the denominations hold joint sessions and begin to consider the possibility of integration.

Thirty-three years after the beginning of Mennonite General Conference, Daniel Kauffman reflected on its contribution. The most important, he said, was in the authoritative statements created by brethren (this was 1931!) who thought "Church-wide" and addressed issues from this broader perspective. The confessions of faith generated by General Conferences carried authority because into them "flowed the thought of not one individual, but many individuals; not one organization, but many organizations; not one congregation, but a number of congregations; not one district, but a number of districts."[10]

This authority, together with the goals of unity and effective provision of services to congregations and outreach to world, will remain the objectives of the integrated MC-GC "General Conference" in the 21st century. ■

Directory of North American Congregations

This directory lists Mennonite Church congregations alphabetically according to the country (Canada, United States, and other), state or province, and city in which they are located. This directory includes all Mennonite congregations listed in the Directory of Conferences and Congregations, Directory of Urban and Area Organizations and Congregations, Directory of Other Mennonite Fellowships and Conferences, and Directory of Other Mennonite Bodies.

Also, listed are congregations affiliated with North American church bodies that may relate to Mennonite World Conference. These include Bergthaler Mennonite Churches (BMC), Brethren in Christ (BIC), Bruderhof Communities (BC), Church of God in Christ Mennonite (CGCM), Conference of Mennonites in Canada (CMC), Evangelical Mennonite Church (EMC), Evangelical Mennonite Conference of Canada (EMCC), Evangelical Mennonite Mission Conference of Canada (EMMC), Fellowship of Evangelical Bible Churches (FEBC), General Conference Mennonite (GC), Hutterian Brethren (HB), Mennonite Brethren (MB), Old Order Mennonites (OOM), Old Order River Brethren (OORB), Reinland Mennonite Church of Canada (RMCC), and United Zion Church (UZC).

Note: GC congregations that carry an asterisk at the end of name carry these meanings: * GC church member of district/area conference but not of GCMC;  GC church not a member of either a district or GCMC but relates to either;  GC church member of GCMC but not of district/area conference.

The purpose of this directory is to provide information regarding the location of the meetinghouse. It is designed to assist readers in their efforts to find or contact the congregation at its place of meeting. Readers desiring to get in touch with the pastor or contact person of a congregation should follow the information provided in one of the directories listed in the first paragraph. See page 6 for an explanation of the conference and church body codes used.

Effort was made to secure complete and accurate information about each congregation listed. If there are errors and/or missing data, please provide full information to the editor, Mennonite Yearbook, 616 Walnut Ave., Scottdale PA 15683-1999. An example of a complete Mennonite Church congregational listing is as follows:

Directory of Conferences and Congregations

Related to Mennonite Church General Assembly

This directory lists Mennonite Church conferences alphabetically. Within each conference, congregations are listed alphabetically by name. Listed with the congregation is the person designated as the primary leader who carries the ministerial function code (1) and those who carry active responsibility (2). For a complete list of ministers see the Ministerial Directory.

Conferences who do not participate in the program of the Mennonite Church General Assembly are included in the Directory of Other Mennonite Fellowships and Conferences.

The purpose of this directory is to provide all information necessary to contact a given congregation as its official contact. This may be the pastor's office, residence, meetinghouse, church office, or another place. The location of the meetinghouse (city, state/province is provided in the Directory of North American Congregations. (See page 6 for an explanation of the conference codes used.)

An example of a complete congregational listing in this directory is as follows:

Report Congregational and Ministerial Changes

The Mennonite Yearbook maintains the official listing of Mennonite Church congregations and ministers. Should there be a change in the congregational address, telephone number, ministerial leadership, or any other details of its listing, please report these changes to the Mennonite Yearbook office at once. In order to enter changes properly the Mennonite Yearbook office needs the old information that is being replaced along with the new information which updates it.

The same request applies to ministers. Any change in the minister's address, telephone, office, function, congregational membership, conference affiliation, and other details are to be reported to the Mennonite Yearbook office at once. Please submit current information with the new information which replaces it.

Send all communications to 616 Walnut Ave., Scottdale, PA 15683-1999, or call us at 412 887-8500; send it e-mail to yearbook%mph@mcimail.com; or send it via fax to 412-887-3111. Also notify your conference secretary or office of these changes. Your conference secretary or office and the Mennonite Yearbook office work together closely to insure a high level of accuracy of congregational and ministerial listings.

Directory of Urban and Area Organizations and Congregations

This directory lists urban councils and area organizations alphabetically. Within each organization, congregations are listed alphabetically. Listed with each congregation is the person designated as the primary leader who carries the ministerial function code (1). For a complete list of ministers see the Mennonite Ministerial Directory.

The purpose of this directory is to identify those informal and emerging bodies which are developing within the life of the church in urban centers as well as in areas where congregations with a variety of conference affiliations and church bodies are located. Also included are those congregations identified by a common ethnic background. Most congregations are members of, and hold primary affiliation with, a Mennonite Church conference, other Mennonite or Christian body.

For an example of a complete listing in this directory see the first page of the Directory of Conferences and Congregations.

MISSION STATEMENT

CAL's mission is to equip Anabaptist leaders in southern California to meet the urban challenge through advocacy, consulting, networking, and resource development.

ORGANIZATIONS

Institute for Urban Anabaptism (IUA) is the Theological and Leadership Development Program of CAL through which leaders are enabled to apply the principles of the Anabaptist vision to an urban 21st-century ministry environment.

Initiative 2000 is the Evangelism and Church Development program of CAL through which a comprehensive system of identification, training, and coaching church planters takes place among Anabaptists in southern California.

Shalom Ministries is the Church-based Community Development program of CAL through which Anabaptist leaders are equipped to strengthen congregational witness in neighborhoods and extended communities through church-based community ministries of relief, reconciliation, and redevelopment.

Pastors' Round Table is a forum that responds to the needs of pastors through prayer and fellowship.

For information on specific projects within each program, please call the CAL office.

GENERAL INFORMATION AND STATISTICS

Date founded: 1987
Annual year: February 1-January 31
Date and place of annual meeting: Spring (at different locations)
Purpose: An organization of representatives from Native American congregations relating to the Mennonite Church. The council meets semiannually for work on issues related to Native American Ministries, promotes leadership training and development, assists with congregational resources and seminars, serves as an advocate with conferences and churchwide agencies. Sponsors inter-tribal fellowships with a biennial assembly. It is the channel for relating to the Mennonite Indian Leaders Council and Native Ministries of Canada programs of the GC as well as to other denominational programs.
Publication: United Native Ministries Newsletter (quarterly), Ruth Horst, editor, 2121 Hawthorne Dr, Elkhart IN 46517 (219 295-8530; fax 219 293-3977)

Directory of Other Mennonite Fellowships and Conferences

Not Related to Mennonite Church General Assembly

This directory lists Mennonite fellowships and conferences alphabetically by name of conference or fellowship. Within each one, congregations are listed alphabetically. Listed with the congregation is the person designated as the primary contact who carries the ministerial function code (1) and those who carry active responsibility (2). For a complete list of ministers see the Mennonite Ministerial Directory.

The purpose of this directory is to provide all the information necessary to contact a given congregation by mail or telephone without consulting other sections of the Yearbook. The mailing address and telephone number listed is the one designated by the congregation as its official contact. This may be the pastor's office, residence, meetinghouse, church office, or another place or person. Information regarding the meetinghouse, (city, state/province) is provided in the Directory of North American Congregations section. (See page 6 for an explanation of the conference codes used.)

For an example of a complete congregational listing in this directory see the first page of the Directory of Conferences and Congregations.

Directory of Other Mennonite Bodies

This directory lists the Beachy Amish Church (BA), the Conservative Mennonite Conference (CM), and the Eastern Pennsylvania Mennonite Church (EP).

Within each body, congregations are listed alphabetically. Listed with the congregation is the person designated as the primary contact who carries the ministerial function code (1) as well as ministers who carry active responsibility (2). All other ministers, except Eastern Pennsylvania Mennonite Church, are included in the Mennonite Ministerial Directory.

The purpose of this directory is to provide all the information necessary to contact a given congregation by mail or telephone without consulting other sections of the Yearbook. The mailing address and telephone number listed is the one designated by the congregation as its official contact. This may be the pastor's office, residence, meetinghouse, church office, or another location or person.

For an example of a complete congregational listing in this directory see the first page of the Directory of Conferences and Congregations.

The code number assigned to the bishops and overseers designates congregational oversight. The number is also included with the congregational entry. This list includes bishop and overseer assignments in congregations where the bishop or overseer is not the pastor. Bishops are not included in this list if they are retired, without official duty, or are serving only in the congregation where they also are senior pastor.

Directory of Mennonite Church Organizations and Related Ministries

The ministry and mission of the Mennonite Church is carried out through churchwide boards listed in this directory. These are supported by contributions from the membership, with exception that the program of the Mennonite Mutual Aid Board is supported by enrollment in their services and the program of the Mennonite Publication Board is supported by sale of books, curriculum materials, magazines, as well as job printing and mailing services. The Women's Missionary and Service Commission receives its income from other than congregational offerings.

The total of the 1997 combined operating budgets of the remaining churchwide agencies (listed below) is $56,714,200. These agencies budgeted $6,127,200 as income from congregational offerings as follows: Mennonite Board of Congregational Ministries, $550,400; Mennonite Board of Education, $95,000; minority leadership education, $210,000; colleges, $761,000; seminaries, $375,800; Mennonite Board of Missions, $3,700,000; Mennonite Church General Board, $342,500; Associate Groups—African-American Mennonite Association, $38,500; Hispanic Mennonite Convention, $31,000; United Native Ministries, $23,000.

Inter-Mennonite agencies approved for churchwide support include Mennonite Central Committee and Mennonite World Conference.

Biennial meeting: at time of General Assembly

Publications: WMSC Voice, ten issues per year; Bible Study Guide, annual, published jointly with Women in Mission (GC).

Programs administered: Books Abroad and At Home; new book allowance for overseas workers with Mennonite mission boards; newsletters for officers and project coordinators.

Urban Councils and Area Church Organizations

These organizations include cooperative efforts of congregations of more than one conference or church body as well as conference-level entities that include more than one conference or church body. Some of these relationships are recognized by the Mennonite Church General Board as successors to the regional structures which discontinued in 1983. Others are emerging programs and activities developing in geographic areas such as large urban centers. The General Board serves as a channel of communication to the Mennonite Church General Assembly for some of these organizations. Organizations are listed by area and name.

Founded 1992. The purpose of the fellowship is to identify those people within Anabaptist denominations who consider themselves evangelical Christians, to provide a setting for resourcing and mutual encouragement, and to build bridges of identification and cooperation between Anabaptists and the broader evangelical community. EAF members and congregational affiliates represent several Anabaptist denominations in Canada and the United States.

Fellowship of Concerned Mennonites (FCM), 1516 Hawthorn Ct, Harrisonburg VA 22801 (540 434-4007), George R Brunk II, executive director; Walter Beachy, president.

Founded 1984. The Fellowship is a coalition of like-minded Mennonites whose concerns focus upon the basic biblical tenets of faith which have been the foundations of the sector of the reformation of the sixteenth century known as the Anabaptist Movement, with special interest in that segment of Anabaptism called Mennonite. The Fellowship was formed because certain of those basic biblical tenets of faith long held as foundational more currently are being questioned, modified, or negated, and, because at issue is the control of thought through the schools and through the publication of literature, and, because in the present confusion of ideas, there is need for a fundamental, distinctive, proportional, and consistent articulation of faith. Publishes The Informer, a bimonthly with 6000 readers.

Date founded: 1905.

Purpose and function: The primary role of the Mennonite Board of Education is to consider Mennonite Church educational objectives and to provide for the best use of personnel and financial resources in meeting these objectives. It is responsible to the church for Hesston College, Goshen College, Eastern Mennonite University, and Goshen Biblical Seminary. In relation to these schools, the Mennonite Board of Education appoints the presidents and institutional board members; establishes broad basic policies; reviews and approves institutional goals and objectives, long-range program and budget planning, new academic programs; makes specific policy decisions as needed, especially on relationships among Mennonite educational institutions; and works with Mennonite Church General Board in communicating financial needs of the schools to the church.

The Mennonite Board of Education works in a coordinating and consulting relationship with the 14 high schools of the Mennonite Secondary Education Council and with the 25 elementary schools of the Mennonite Elementary Education Council.

The board meets quarterly, with the annual meeting in December or January.

Fiscal year: July 1-June 30.

Annual Meeting:

1997 Special Days: Church School Day, February 2; Back to School Day, August 31.

1995-96 expenses: $378,000. Additional funds in the amount of $264,545 were handled for racial/ethnic leadership education, including the High-Aim program.

Staff: full-time equivalent professional staff of 4.0.

Goshen Biblical Seminary

Goshen Biblical Seminary (GBS), a Mennonite Church school, and Mennonite Biblical Seminary (MBS), a General Conference Mennonite Church school, together comprise the integrated GC and MC Associated Mennonite Biblical Seminary (AMBS). AMBS is now recognized as one school by the Association of Theological Schools.

Members of the GBS Board of Overseers are accountable to the Mennonite Board of Education for the development of programs to meet the pastoral and theological education needs of the Mennonite Church. The GBS Board of Overseers and MBS Board of Trustees do most of their work jointly as the AMBS Board.

See the AMBS entry for the full listing of overseer/trustees, faculty, staff, academic programs, and other general information.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Merle A Schantz, president; Merle Nisly, general secretary; Henry Hostetler, treasurer

GENERAL INFORMATION AND STATISTICS

Founded: In 1938 Irwin and Susan Schantz, along with Llewellyn and Edith Groff, left Pennsylvania to venture into church planting. Ten churches were started in Minnesota. Most of these churches became part of the North Central Mennonite Conference. In 1952 Irwin Schantz moved to northwestern Ontario. Numerous churches were started in Native communities and today nine continue with Native leadership. (See listing for Christian Anishinabec Fellowship). Three missionary teams are in urban areas with a focus on Native people in the cities and plans are to begin a ministry with another ethnic group.

Purpose: To establish reproducing, inter-related churches as local expressions of the body of Jesus Christ through evangelism and discipleship with a primary focus on Native North Americans.

Staff: 23 couples and 10 singles working in church planting or support ministries

Publications: bimonthly newsletter plus an in-house newsletter.

Finances: 1995 cash flow was $710,088 (Canadian dollars)

LEGAL ENTITIES

Mennonite Mutual Aid provides insurance plans, financial services, charitable programs, and educational resources to help Mennonites and related groups practice the biblical principles of mutual aid and stewardship. To accomplish this, MMA programs operate through eight legal entities. The MMA Board of Directors serves as the board for each of the following:

Mennonite Mutual Aid, Inc.—Vehicle for office facilities, salary administration, and coordination of other MMA entities.

Mennonite Foundation, Inc.—Receives, manages, and distributes gifts of cash and property for Mennonite conferences and institutions.

Mennonite Mutual Aid Association—Fraternal benefit association; provides medical expense and life plans for individuals, congregations and institutions, and retirement plans for people with earned income.

Mennonite Automobile Aid, Inc.—Comprehensive and collision coverages, avoids litigation.

MMA Insurance Co.—Provides group health and life insurance plans for Mennonite employers.

Mennonite Retirement Trust—Trusteeship which provides church workers retirement plan.

Menno Insurance Service, Inc.—Stock corporation owned by MMA; provides employee benefits management, and property and casualty risk management.

Mennonite Church Buildings, Inc.—Provides investment and financing for institutions and congregations. Also owns the building occupied by MMA offices.

PROGRAMS AND SERVICES

Fraternal benefits—a wide range of programs including: 1. matching grants to help local congregations aid members in need and to help meet needs in their communities, plus grants to help wtih health insurance premiums for missionaries and seminary students; and 2. educational resources to help congregations and small groups study stewardship and mutual aid issues including wellness, death and dying, the health care system, physical and mental disabilities, and more. These programs are made possible by MMA's special legal status as a fraternal benefit association. This allows money that would otherwise be paid as taxes to be used to benefit members without additional cost.

Personal protection— health insurance, life insurance, long-term care, disability, and physical damage coverage for autos

Group insurance— benefit programs for large and small groups

Financial services— investment opportunities through annuities and mutual funds, retirement programs, church loans, creative plans for supporting church-related missions and other charities, estate planning

General Conference Mennonite Church

In July 1995 at Wichita 95 in the general assembly meetings of the General Conference Mennonite Church and Mennonite Church delegates agreed to integrate the two bodies. In order to acquaint Mennonite Church readers to the General Conference Mennonite Church, the basic organizational structure of the General Conference Mennonite Church is presented here. It is also intended to introduce MC's with the current GC leadership.

Date of organization: 1920

Mission statement: MCC is an agency of the Mennonite and Brethren in Christ churches in North America. MCC seeks to demonstrate God's love through committed women and men who work among people suffering from poverty, conflict, oppression, and natural disaster. MCC serves as a channel for interchange between churches and community groups where we work around the world and the North American churches who send us, so that all may grow and be transformed. MCC strives for peace, justice, and dignity of all people by sharing our experiences, resources, and faith in Jesus Christ.

Participating bodies: Beachy Amish Church, Brethren in Christ, Chortitzer Mennonites, Conservative Mennonite Conference, Evangelical Mennonite Church, Evangelical Mennnonite Conference, General Conference Mennonite Church, Lancaster Mennonite Conference, Mennonite Brethren, Mennonite Church, Old Colony, Old Order Amish, Old Order Mennonite, Sommerfelder Mennonite; also regional and provincial MCC organizations in Canada and the United States.

VICTIM OFFENDER RECONCILIATION PROGRAMS

Mennonite Central Committee helped pioneer the first Victim Offender Reconciliation Program (VORP) in Kitchener, Ont., in 1974. Now there are over 70 such programs in the U.S. and Canada. Similar programs also exist in England and Europe. Programs with Mennonite involvement are listed as follows. These community or church-based programs operate in cooperation with criminal courts to offer victims and offenders an opportunity to meet. These meetings, mediated by trained volunteers, allow participants to find out what happened, express their feelings, and work out a restitution contract. Participating bodies: Various community and church organizations.

Directory of Overseas Mennonite Churches and Programs

The following list of overseas Mennonite churches and programs was provided by the Council of International Ministries (CIM). Since CIM is an inter-Mennonite agency this listing includes churches and programs related to all of the participating Mennonite bodies in North America. The name of the sponsoring body or fraternal North American organization is identified with each entry. Also listed for each is the name, address, and telephone including fax and e-mail of the designated contact person.

For further information about overseas churches or programs, such as number of members and congregations, leaders, names of North American workers, and other details, contact the sponsoring agency. Names and addresses of CIM member agencies are listed in the Directory of Mennonite and Inter-Mennonite Projects. Or contact Peter Rempel, 600 Shaftesbury Blvd, Winnipeg, MB R3P 0M4 (204 888-6781; fax 204 831-5675).

Report Congregational and Ministerial Changes

The Mennonite Yearbook maintains the official listing of Mennonite Church congregations and ministers. Should there be a change in the congregational address, telephone number, ministerial leadership, or any other details of its listing, please report these changes to the Mennonite Yearbook office at once. In order to enter changes properly the Mennonite Yearbook office needs the old information that is being replaced along with the new information which updates it.

The same request applies to ministers. Any change in the minister's address, telephone, office, function, congregational membership, conference affiliation, and other details are to be reported to the Mennonite Yearbook office at once. Please submit current information with the new information which replaces it.

Send all communications to 616 Walnut Ave., Scottdale, PA 15683-1999, or call us at 412 887-8500; send it e-mail to yearbook%mph@mcimail.com; or send it via fax to 412-887-3111. Also notify your conference secretary or office of these changes. Your conference secretary or office and the Mennonite Yearbook office work together closely to insure a high level of accuracy of congregational and ministerial listings.

Notes:

1. All data on this table are for youth and students from congregations in North American conferences affiliated with Mennonite Church General Assembly (see list of conferences on Table 21); students from other Mennonite groups (including smaller Mennonite Church conferences and overseas conferences) and other-than-Mennonite students are not included in these numbers.
2. Numbers for Mennonite colleges and seminaries are for full-time students only; numbers for other colleges and universities may include some part-time students. (Information on attendance at other colleges and universities gathered by Student and Young Adult Services of Mennonite Board of Missions.)
3. Separate figures reported for Goshen College regular program and degree-completion program.

Bible studies for youth

the LINK

The LINK keeps the biblical story central. Each session begins with a Bible text and then weaves youth's practical experiences through the classroom material. Each quarter of the LINK is written by an Anabaptist-Mennonite writer with education of Mennonite youth in mind.

Note: In addition to the Mennonite Church students of Table 22, the data in this table includes all other students. The first column for each school lists full-time students, and in the second column part-time students are added. Goshen College includes 33 degree-completion students in 1992, 35 in 1993, and 70 in 1994 and 71 in 1995. Eastern Mennonite University includes 33 students in graduate programs apart from the seminary in 1994 and 47 in 1995. Beginning 1994, Goshen Biblical Seminary figures are for Associated Mennonite Biblical Seminary.

Mennonite Church Ministerial Directory

This directory lists all ordained, licensed or commissioned men and women who are members of all Mennonite conferences and bodies included in the Directory of Conferences and Congregations, the Directory of Urban and Area Organizations and Congregations, the Directory of Other Mennonite Fellowships and Conferences, and the Directory of Other Mennonite Bodies. One exception is that the ministers of the Eastern Pennsylvania Mennonite Church are not included.

The information provided for each minister is: name, four-digit individual identification code, name of spouse, address, telephone (while the home information is requested, some ministers list their office number), office, year of ordination, function, year of birth, congregational name and number (if person carries functions 1 and 2), conference, fellowship, or church body affiliation.

Jubilee

GOD'S GOOD NEWS

In a nine-denomination survey about curriculum use, Jubilee came out highest in customer satisfaction and was lifted up as a model for other churches.

We've known all along that Jubilee was good. It's great to hear you're saying it too.

Mennonite Experience in America Series

Mennonites in American Society, 1930-1970: Modernity and the Persistence of Religious Community

The Mennonite Experience in America, Volume 4
Mennonites in American Society, 1930-1970
MODERNITY AND THE PERSISTENCE OF RELIGIOUS COMMUNITY
Paul Toews

This fourth and final volume provides a rich interpretive story of how Mennonites have preserved their identity through the 20th century. Paul Toews provides an in-depth look at how Mennonites and Amish were able to become a more visible and respected people than ever before during their more than 300 years in America. Paper, 448 pages.

Other books in the MEA Series:
Land, Piety, Peoplehood by Richard K. MacMaster
Peace, Faith, Nation by Theron F. Schlabach
Vision, Doctrine, War by James C. Juhnke

Each, $19.99; in Canada $28.50.
Set, $79.99; in Canada $113.95.

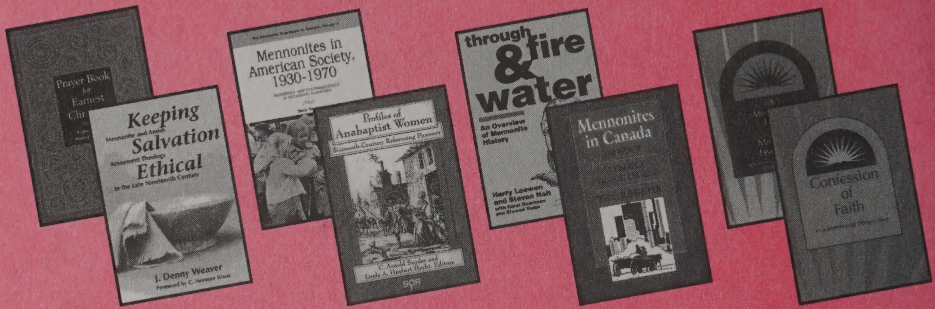
Readings from a Century of Life and Thought



Prayer Book for Earnest Christians, translated and edited by Leonard Gross, Herald Press, 1996, 144 pages, $8.95; $12.80 in Canada. A prayer and worship resource. A translation of Die ernsthafte Christenpflicht, still in print, which has gone through eighty-seven known editions or reprints since 1708. Carries all of the prayers of the current edition of Christenpflicht including the seven prayers appended in the 1992 edition from the first (1846) Canadian edition. These prayers were first offered three centuries ago by devout Anabaptists in Europe, Amish and Mennonites. These prayers are as fitting today as then.

Keeping Salvation Ethical, by J. Denny Weaver, Herald Press, 1997, 280 pages, $19.95; $28.50 in Canada. An analysis of late-19th-century Mennonite and Amish thought on the atonement. Weaver maintains that the Anabaptists did have a theology, displayed in their lived faith and in their writings, but it was threatened by the satisfaction theory of the atonement. He proposes a unique historicized Christus Victor model of atonement and peacemaking.

Mennonites in American Society, 1930-1970, by Paul Toews, Herald Press, 1996, 448 pages, $19.95; $28.50 in Canada. Paul Toews provides an interpretive story of how Mennonites have preserved their identity through the 20th century. An in-depth look at how Mennonites and Amish were able to become a more visible and respected people than ever before during their more than 300 years in North America.

Profiles of Anabaptist Women: Sixteenth-Century Reforming Pioneers, by C Arnold Snyder and Linda A Huebert Hecht, editors, Wilfrid Laurier Universtiy Press, 1996, $28.95. Lively, well-researched profiles of Anabaptist women who chose to risk persecution and martyrdom to pursue their faith. These stories will give readers an appreciation for the central role played by women in the Anabaptist movement.

Through Fire and Water, by Harry Loewen, Steven Nolt, Carol Duerksen and Elwood Yoder, Herald Press, 1996, 320 pages, $14.95; $21.50 in Canada. This is a popularized look at Mennonites, from the 1500s to today. Includes stories, photos, maps and cartoons. Brief essays invite reflection on such issues as church and state, world outreach, and the marks of a faithful community

Mennonites in Canada, 1939-1970: A People Transformed, by T. D. Regehr, University of Toronto Press, 1996, 600 pages, $29.95. Regehr interprets the change among Mennonites from a rural to an urban community which came about through their pacifistic stand during World War II. In the process Mennonites became more aware of events, issues, and opportunities for Christian witness and service in the urban setting.

A Mennonite Polity for Ministerial Leadership, Faith & Life Press, 1996, 148 pages, $8.95; $12.80 in Canada. This document, produced by the General Conference Mennonite Church and the Mennonite Church, espouses a threefold leadership structure of: 1. oversight ministries; 2. church and pastoral ministries; and 3. lay ministries. This statement provides theological, historical, and ethical information for ministerial leadership.

Confession of Faith in a Mennonite Perspective, Herald Press, 1995, 112 pages, $4.95; $7.15 in Canada. This confession was adopted by the General Conference Mennonite Church and the Mennonite Church in 1995. Volume includes commentary, two unison readings, and a Scripture index.
